Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Handbook of the Venezuelan Question and the Monroe Doctrine That effect it probably had an agency in producing; and, if so, it has performed its office. The President had no power to bind the Nation by such a pledge. Polk in 1845 and 1848. When Polk uttered these words he was a member of Congress from Tennessee. But when our country was next called on to apply the doctrine Polk was President of the United States and had been elected by a party whose cry was Give us Texas or divide the spoons! The whole of Oregon or none; fifty-four, forty, or fight! and saw before him a war with Mexico and serious trouble with England. In 1826 the Monroe doctrine, he thought, had been designed to produce an effect on the councils of the Holy Alliance and had performed its office. Now he found it had still an office to perform, gave his cordial concurrence in its wisdom and sound policy, and sent this message to Congress: It is well known to the American people and to all nations that this Government has never interfered with the relations subsisting between other Governments. We have never made ourselves parties to their wars or their alliances; we have not sought their territories by conquest; we have not mingled with parties in their domestic struggles; and, believing our own form of government to be the best, we have never attempted to propagate it by intrigues, by diplomacy, or by force. We may claim on this continent a like exemption from European interference. The nations of America are equally sovereign and independent with those of Europe. They possess...
